

Satellite radio is a dependable means of receiving information such as weather and traffic. I think that if the NAB is allowed to block this service, it would be a detriment to the public. We the public are paying for this service and should be allowed to continue to receive it.

I am sure these same issues occurred when cable television came on the scene. If you were to try to take away cable or even satellite television you would have a riot on your hands. The NAB is trying to prevent satellite from becoming so popular that it can no longer fight it. Let the public decide if satellite radio should be made by their subscription to the service or not.
